Connecting the verb “went” in 3:19 with the same verb in 3:22, it is concluded that in His ascension the risen Christ made this proclamation. But if you take the phrase “in the spirit” to mean “by the [Holy] Spirit” (there are no capital letters in the original text), then Peter would be referring to the Holy Spirit as the agent of Christ’s resurrection (see Rom. 1:4; 8:11).

God makes it clear, however, that each individual will be evaluated according to his own actions, whether righteous or wicked. The metaphor involving a righteous man (Ezek. 18:5-9), his sinful son (Ezek. 18:10-13), and his righteous grandson (Ezek. 18:14-17) illustrates that people are not held accountable for the morality of their ancestors.

Start in Genesis. The first mention of the original sabbath is in Genesis 2:2-3. The word "sabbath" is generally translated as "rest." This is a source of some confusion, as many don't realize that the word simply means to stop. This isn't the kind of rest we need after a good workout. It's more like a musical rest, where no notes are played.
